This will not only allow students to gain practice in reading comprehension and interpretation, but also give them an opportunity to be able to synthesize and apply what they have read and put it into written words. The course will specifically deal with the general question of globalization as well as several key areas that have effect on nations and peoples throughout the world. Thus, after 1. A brief overview of the debate regarding globalization the focus will turn to other critical areas such as 2. International Organizations 3. Governance and Leadership 4. Civil Society 5. Development 6. Human Rights 7. Environment 8. Media |
